Contador's revenge "Better than the Tour"

Stampa articolo | Invia articolo

The Spaniard's joy, "This victory is worth winning the yellow jersey again. Now I'm going on holiday, this time I'll turn my mobile off...". Riccò, "I'll be back to climb the last step". Bruseghin, "Not even my mother would've bet that I'd be third in Milan".

Alberto Contador, 25 years old, with the trophy of the Giro. AFP

MILAN, 1 June 2008 - "Revenge" is a word that Alberto never says, not even after conquering the Giro d'Italia, demonstrating his strength to those who would not let him race in the Tour de France. His girlfriend, Macarena, speaks of "great satisfaction, now people will understand that they were wrong" but he doesn't even waste a word on his "enemies". However, the spirit of revenge is in the air around this all-around champion: agile in climbing, strong in time trials, with a rational head on his shoulders. "In ten months, I won the Tour and then the Giro. That's impressive. I had a lot of rivals, all of them strong. This is why it's an honour to wear the pink jersey, just like it was for Indurain in the past. For me, this win at the Giro has the same value as winning the Tour again".
